Recovery Drive Officials Vision Business Upturn

Federal Officials Cite Number Of Factors Indicating Business Situation

BIG PROGRAM IS BEING LAUNCHED

Expect Public Works Program To Be Well Under Way By January 1

WASHINGTON, July 27.—An announcement that the country is entering a business upturn, federal officials in charge of the administration's 1938 recovery drive today presented better times.

They presented in substance of their declaration the following factors:

Factors Cited

1. PWA's six-week billion dollar public works program that, when fully under way by next January 1, will involve expenditure of $3,000,000,000 throughout the country.

2. A billion-dollar increase in tax receipts for the fiscal year ending June 30 last, during which taxpayers paid up $6,687,663,214, compared with approximately $4,353,000,000 the previous year.

3. CCC reached maximum enrollment of 300,000 youths and veterans on July 20th and immediately started readjusting its program to the new $276,000,000 budget. Actually 340,000 persons, including territories, Indians and reserve officers, are employed by the CCC.

4. Foreign trade in food topped the billion-dollar mark to the 12 months ended June 30, indicating renewed American exportation.

While PWA took stock of the more than 3,000 projects it has already approved with construction costs totaling $600,679,564, the small construction administration realtàd an announcement of allocations totaling $8,000,000.

PA NEWC OBSERVES

It was just 75 years ago this week when New Castle got its biggest thrill of the Civil war. The occasion was what is known as Morgan's raid. Morgan, with his Confederate guerrillas, had swept up from the south as far as Columbia county, O. Reports reached New Castle that they were headed this way. It was on a Sunday morning, and so great was the excitement that Dr. Judd dismissed services at the First Presbyterian church and the men rushed out to arm themselves. Wagons came into New Castle with teams of farmers, armed with rifles, revolvers, shot-guns and even pitchforks and cutters. Fortunately the raiders were stopped by Union troops near Martin's Ferry, O. But it gave this section a thrill.

Quiet action has followed the suggestion that benches be placed along the sidewalk on Jefferson street along the Wallace building to accommodate persons waiting for buses. Two benches have been placed there already and others may follow. As everybody knows, it's a lot harder to stand than it is to walk. Your feet burn, your legs ache, your backbone twinges, and the old brain aches like a coughing in a pair of glasses. On most occasions men stand and hold their babies when it is greater or easier than bending at a wash tub.

On July 26, 1938, the house expressed its approval of Chamberlain's "realistic" program in the foreign field.

The vote followed a tense foreign affairs debate during which Chamberlain portrayed his government as a peace-maker for Europe and expressed hopes the United States would cooperate with Britain's efforts.

Chief among Chamberlain's assertions was a declaration that Viscount Runciman will be sent to Prague to act as mediator, but not as arbitrator, in the German-Czech crisis over the Sudeten minority.

PROTEST!

Before the present special session of the Pennsylvania General Assembly there is a bill which has for its immediate goal the throttling of the grand jury investigation of alleged corruption among state officials.

Once passed this bill is expected to stop any grand jury investigation of corruption among state officials and thus take from the people the weapon they have to strike down possible malfeasance in state office.

This bill is vicious. It will place in the hands of a political machine the sole right to investigate its own shortcomings.

If passed and signed—and it will be unless the people of Pennsylvania arouse themselves—it will undoubtedly be the forerunner of further dictatorial legislation.

You should protest the passage of this bill!

Wire your protest now, to either State Senator William J. Erie, Jr., or Assemblymen Carmi G. Preston and James B. Kolko, who represent this district, city and county. Let your representatives know that you are against such legislation!

Spanish Government Troops Make Surprise Attack Along Coast

Chinese Troops Leave Kiukiang

ERIE, Pa., July 27.—Three armed bandits early today held up and robbed a Buffalo, N. Y., truck and escaped with $700 in cash. The money was taken from Samuel Weis, of Buffalo, owner and Philip Berg, Weis' chief driver. One bandit remained in an auto as two companions completed the holdup.

On August 17, announced chairman Tom Holland, the board will begin analysis of the record and briefs, and thereafter will start drafting the schedules.

Up 17 Floors, Before Fatal Leap

A youth, John W. Ward, is shown (circle) as he spent 11 hours on a ledge of the Hotel Gotham's seventeenth floor in New York City, before leaping to his death on Tuesday evening. Appeals were made to the youth by persons pictured at the top (arrows) not to jump. Thousands turned up traffic on Fifth Avenue while the youth stood on the ledge, refusing pleas of police and firemen not to leap off the ledge, and finally jumped to his death.

Hope To Draw Up Business
Labor Peace Plan Before Congress Meets

EXTEND SCOPE OF LEADERS' GROUP

By ERIC FRIDHEIM
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, July 27.—A far-reaching program calling for harmonious relations and close economic co-operation between industry and labor is being formulated by 16 of the nation's foremost business leaders.

The business group, organized last April in the effort of a former Secretary of the Treasury, W. H. Davis, hopes to draw up a comprehensive business-society plan of action now and the long-term assumptions in January.

Since it came to the group disclosed today that the majority of its members feel that industry's relationship with labor in the United States must be broken into three distinct areas now and the long-term assumptions in January.

It is the view of many of the group that industrial leadership of the labor problem is obsolete in the light of the present day economy. This group is in agreement that in this respect American industry is at least eight to ten years behind the more progressive policies maintained in Great Britain.

Although the group was formed originally to promote teamwork between government and industry, members have reached the conclusion that no such co-operation can succeed without the assistance of labor.

For this reason concerted efforts will be made over the next few months to bring into harmony the conflicting views of large industrial organizations and labor leaders.

Spokesmen for the group disclosed that conversations with labor representatives currently are going forward.

The ultimate objective, they declared, would be an economic family composed of the employer, the workers and the government.

say the plan was to keep it on the postponed calendar until the other investigation measures had been passed and the legislative inquiry was well under way.

Under present plans the general assembly will recess for "about a month" following passage of the public bill.

Many members were frankly reluctant to support the measure because it would set up official treatment in the courts for public officials and another, less favorable one, for private individuals accused of criminal conduct. They contend it would ban "regality" under the law.

The bill is based on the constitutional provision that "all criminal prosecutions the accused hath a right to be heard by himself and his counsel to demand the nature and cause of the accusation against him to meet the witnesses face to face."

The measure is drawn to include members of the general assembly, the governor, lieutenant-governor, state department heads, members of executive or administrative boards or commissions, supreme or superior court Justices, or any judge of a court of record.

lived as the body of Wardie followed to the edge of a cigarette he had lit and leaped away and it burnt before the other, Wardie, claimed he had a high-speed heart rate and had struck one of the muscles with such tremendous force as to shatter parts of the ornamental steel scroll work. For a moment instant, it hung half way to the earth, the marquis under the support of street lamps and the world tittered at the thunders of the fall.

The boy dropped to the street. The general of death was over. Women screamed and tauted Wardie's fingers and twisted their faces away.

The body was claimed by Wardie's sister, Mrs. Katherine Bell, who leaped twice yesterday under the strain of prancing with her brother to abandon his mad refuge on the hotel ledge.

Had Been Asylum Patient

Wardie who had been a patient in a state asylum for the insane until November of last year, attempted suicide only nine days ago. He attempted to jump from a bridge at Hampton Bays near Southampton, but was restrained by authorities.

He sought death by slashing his wrists on July 17, 1937, at his home and was committed to the Central Islip Hospital for the Insane. He had been employed as a teller in a Southampton bank.

A few seconds more on the ledge and Wardie would have met with an tragic failure in his quest for self destruction.

A carage salvage net, 25 feet by 40 feet, was obtained from the coast guard. It was hauled steadily from the street to the 16th floor of the hotel by police and firemen while a police sergeant sat by a field telephone ready to give the final signal to raise the one end of the net suddenly to the 18th floor, covering the ledge on which Wardie was standing, smoking a cigarette.

On the 18th floor, fireman George McKenna and patrolman Alvin Miller wanted to be lowered to the ledge at the same time that one side of the net was raised. If Wardie jumped the net would catch him. If he didn't they would be able to seize him.

See Rescue Attempt

White McKenna and Miller were being lowered slowly, one of them strapped on the upper corner, Wardie heard the sound.

His eyes darted up and he saw McKenna's foot. He glanced up to his right and saw the tip of Miller's foot, the two men were almost level with his shoulders when Wardie slipped away the cigarette.

He placed his hands above his head in the awkward gesture of an inexperienced diver and hopped himself slightly to the right. His body cleared the edge of the net.

He plummeted downward, spread-easted and struck the solid marquis with such force that it swayed.

The last words of the frustrated player were spoken had an hour before he leaped to his death. Charles Giesow, in whom of all people who tried to persuade him to abandon his plan, Wardie seemed to place the most trust.

"I have made up my mind. Nothing can stop me," Wardie said.

Dr. J. C. Prosser, the hotel physician, declared Wardie's rooms of taxation ended at about that time. He came then to a definite decision, Dr. Prosser said.

"The mental state of Wardie in the last had four names," the physician explained, "and he had made a definite decision to die."

"He jumped, not because he feared the police, but because, finally had made up his mind."

Much interest is being manifested by a large group watching preparations made by a gang of workmen in Cochran Alley for hoisting a large safe to the top floor of the Pennsylvania Power Company's building, on the corner of East Washington Street and the Diamond. It was necessary to attach an extension to the boom of the crane to the high height of the window prepared for the passing through of the safe.

SEATTLE, July 27.—Bring them in to show them that Al Hostak is a real fighting champion from the wood and quickly showed Al Hostak how middleweight champion of the world is to him. "Mr. Hostak has met and I supported him today."

Hostak, the United States champion in one minute and 43 seconds, of fighters in the first round of their scheduled 12-round bout, before a crowd of more than 30,000, stunned fans gathered at an amateur to see if Fred Apostol and Young Steele, two leading challengers for the championship.

Steele opened the contest with a right to the head with Hostak parrying away from it. Then dashed around the ring for a second and then, like lightning, the Slav set over his stock that traveled only eight inches.

Several Knockdowns

Steele went down and although he bounded up without a count there was a dazed expression in his eyes.

The contender, anxious for the kill, went in with both fists bared and Steele went down again in a flurry of blows. Again he came up without Referee Jack Dempsey tooting over him.

When Steele had climbed to his feet again, Hostak landed a right to the chin which sent him right back to the floor.

The next time he got up, Steele ran right into a right which sent him down to stay while Referee Dempsey counted him out.

Steele weighed 159 and Hostak 155.

Mrozek In Form, Gives First-
Half Champs But Eight
Scattered Hits

Little "Cachie" Mrozek held the West Pittsburgh team in check last night at the Cedar street field in a City Baseball league surprise victory. Picato was on the knob for the Tigers and gave up six hits. He was effective with men in base.

A five-run rally in the first of the sixth put the victory in the Tiger's lap. The only extra-base soaking was done by John Wilk and W. Bevan. Five errors didn't help the Indies cause very much.

Masajada and Savage did the hurling for the Indies and were touched for seven hits.

The summary

The best batters for the Mrozek men were—Mateo, Al Oroszky, B. Oroszky and Brysh. The Panthers sparkled in the field. This was the second time that the Oaklanders have beaten West Pittsburgh.

Stock Market Is Unsettled

Liquidation Pushes Ticker
To Seven Minutes Behind
As Market Opened
Today

NEW YORK, July 27.—The stock market, Soothsayers said, made a definite recovery from yesterday's sharp sell-off and buying issues were again prominent in the early morning. The market, however, was not able to make up ground.

There was a wave of liquidation yesterday, but seven minutes before the opening of the stock exchanges, a series of "flash" prices from the floor of the New York Stock Exchange were issued by the operators of the seven brokers involved in the sale of stocks, exhorting the public to "flash" prices.

There was little in the news to account for the buying, as Wall Street had been cheered by yesterday's action of the Steel Corp. in defeating the smaller preferred dividend, despite the large debt it suffered.

Then there was the heavy profit-taking by traders who felt the market was long over and a real correctional movement. Many stop-loss orders were recovered as the last second, accelerating the broad decline.

Chromes, coppers, rubbers, steels, iron, motors and blue-chips suffered the heaviest losses.

Charles Candler and Philip Morris each tumbled more than four points after support was encouraged. Westinghouse Electric dropped more than three, while U. S. Steel, U. S. Rubber, Montgomery Ward, DuPont, Allstate, American Telephone, Air Reduction, Union Carbide, Johns-Manville and International Harvester were among the leaders to give up two or more points.

Before the sudden influx of selling, the general market had ruled moderately higher on a recovery from yesterday's mid-reaction. Mark Trucks, National Cash Register, Goodrich, Soderbergh, Murray Corp. and Bendix Aviation all had enjoyed some new high ground for the year.

Commissioners were deposited along with stocks, including cotton and grains. Rubber, though displayed independent strength, started its downward march in trading here was more evenly than in the stock list.

Foreign markets continued quiet and little changed. The dollar ruled steadily against major short currencies.

According to Peter Carcella, who is in charge of the grounds, a croquetting class for girls will be opened. He presented Father Scholz with a letter from the club members. He stated that anyone wishing to take part in this project should report to the playground.

The ball field at the playground is excessively popular. For this week games were suspended every night. Games were also played on several of the afternoons of the week. Next week, according to Carcella, every day has been taken at the field.
